Work History January 2010 - Present
Graphic Designer, Viewprint, London
My position as Graphic Designer at Viewprint saw me designing business cards and logos for new and old companies alike. A customer could contact me with a brief idea of what they wanted and leave me to come up with some ideas. I really loved the flexibility and creative freedom afforded to me. I would liaise with the client until they were happy with the finished design.

January 2008- January 2010
Graphic Designer, Peters Packaging Productions, London
Working as a Graphic Designer for Peters Packaging was a very versatile position in which I would have to take a newly made product, and design its packaging. More than just its brand image and logos etc., I would also have to decide upon the form and function of the packaging. I would work alongside the clients manufacturing plants to ensure that the packaging was suitable for the product and the client direct for the marketing designs.

Graphic Designer, Crazy Canvases, London
Working at this customer led canvas store saw me taking peoples treasured memories and transferring them to canvases of their choice. Often I would have to retouch or tweak the images, or sometimes I would be asked for affects or text to be added. I also had some experience of restoration of an older image in order to be able to transfer it to a canvas.
