Work History

January 2010 - Present

Merchandiser, Office World, London

Working in this large office as a Merchandiser it was my duty to produce layout plans for the stores to ensure that maximum exposure was given to the right products to ensure that stock sold as well as possible and was displayed to the best possible advantage. I would be required to create sales forecasts for any new range and decide what to do if the range didn't sell.

January 2008- January 2010

Merchandiser, Sallies Sweeties, London.

As a Merchandiser in this large sweet shop it was my job to work with the buyers to decide how much stock of each product should be ordered dependent on what had sold the previous month, and what trends were showing in the market. I would then be responsible for creating displays and promotions, especially during holidays and festive times.

January 2007 – January 2008

Merchandiser, Venus, London

Working for this large national electronics retailer as a Merchandiser saw me dealing with thousands of products and having to ensure that each was selling well and placed in the correct part of each store to maximise sales. I specialised in setting point of sale displays in prominent areas of the store to boost sales of sundry items. I was also responsible for the dropping of unprofitable lines and the ordering of new lines, and then marketing them well.
